The magazine mainly consists of high-resolution photographs explicitly depicting sexual activity and nudity. It also contains a limited amount of text containing sexually explicit and offensive language. The magazine is intended for an adult male readership with its primary purpose being the sexual arousal of the reader.

The magazine contains some degrading, dehumanising and demeaning elements in its presentation of women.

The magazine is likely to be injurious to the public good unless its availability is restricted to an adult audience. This is because of the explicit treatment of matters of sex as well as the degrading, dehumanising and demeaning elements in some of the presentation of this sexual content.

The criteria applied by the Classification Office, resulting in the limit on the availability of this publication, are prescribed by law. This classification represents the minimum interference with the freedom of expression (the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990) that is consistent with Parliament's intention to prevent likely injury to the public good.
